Christian Education

by the bells of

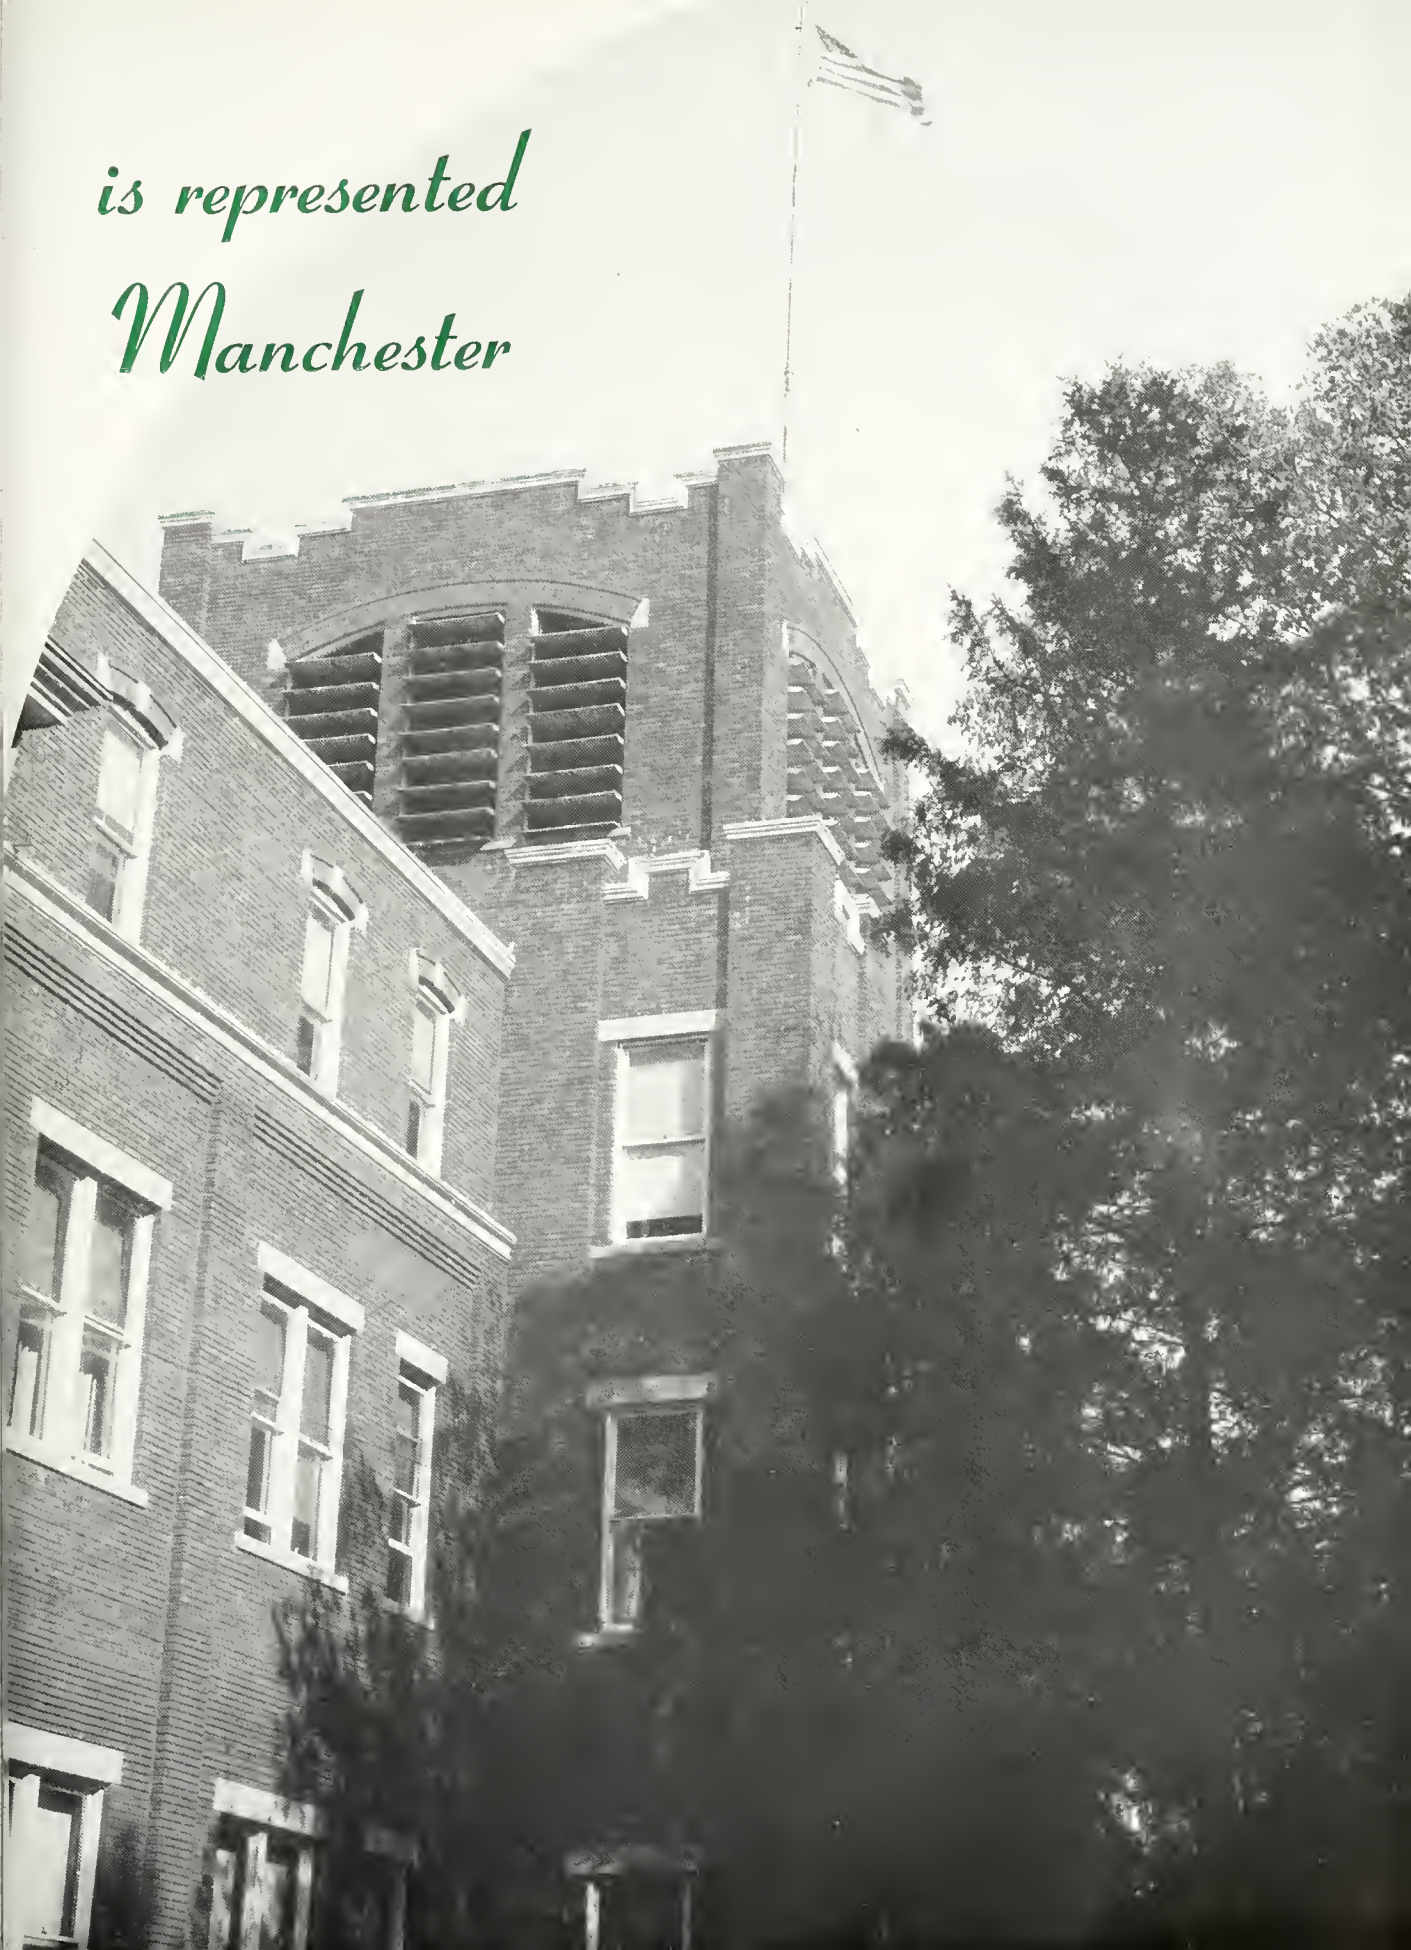

Musically attuned to the life of the campus are the bells in our chime tower. They ring out bold and strong as they call us to seek new truth in Christian Education. From every note of their pulsating song comes the inspiration that guides our thinking to the high level of creative activity. Blended in their rhythm and harmony is an enthusiasm for learning, a courage for living, and a firm faith in the future that is to be.

On the bells are inscribed the ideals that have come to be the essence of Manchester—brotherhood—hope—faith—devotion—love—peace. As the bells have heralded these ideals in years past, so may they ring on in the future, spreading over the campus the spirit that is forever Manchester.

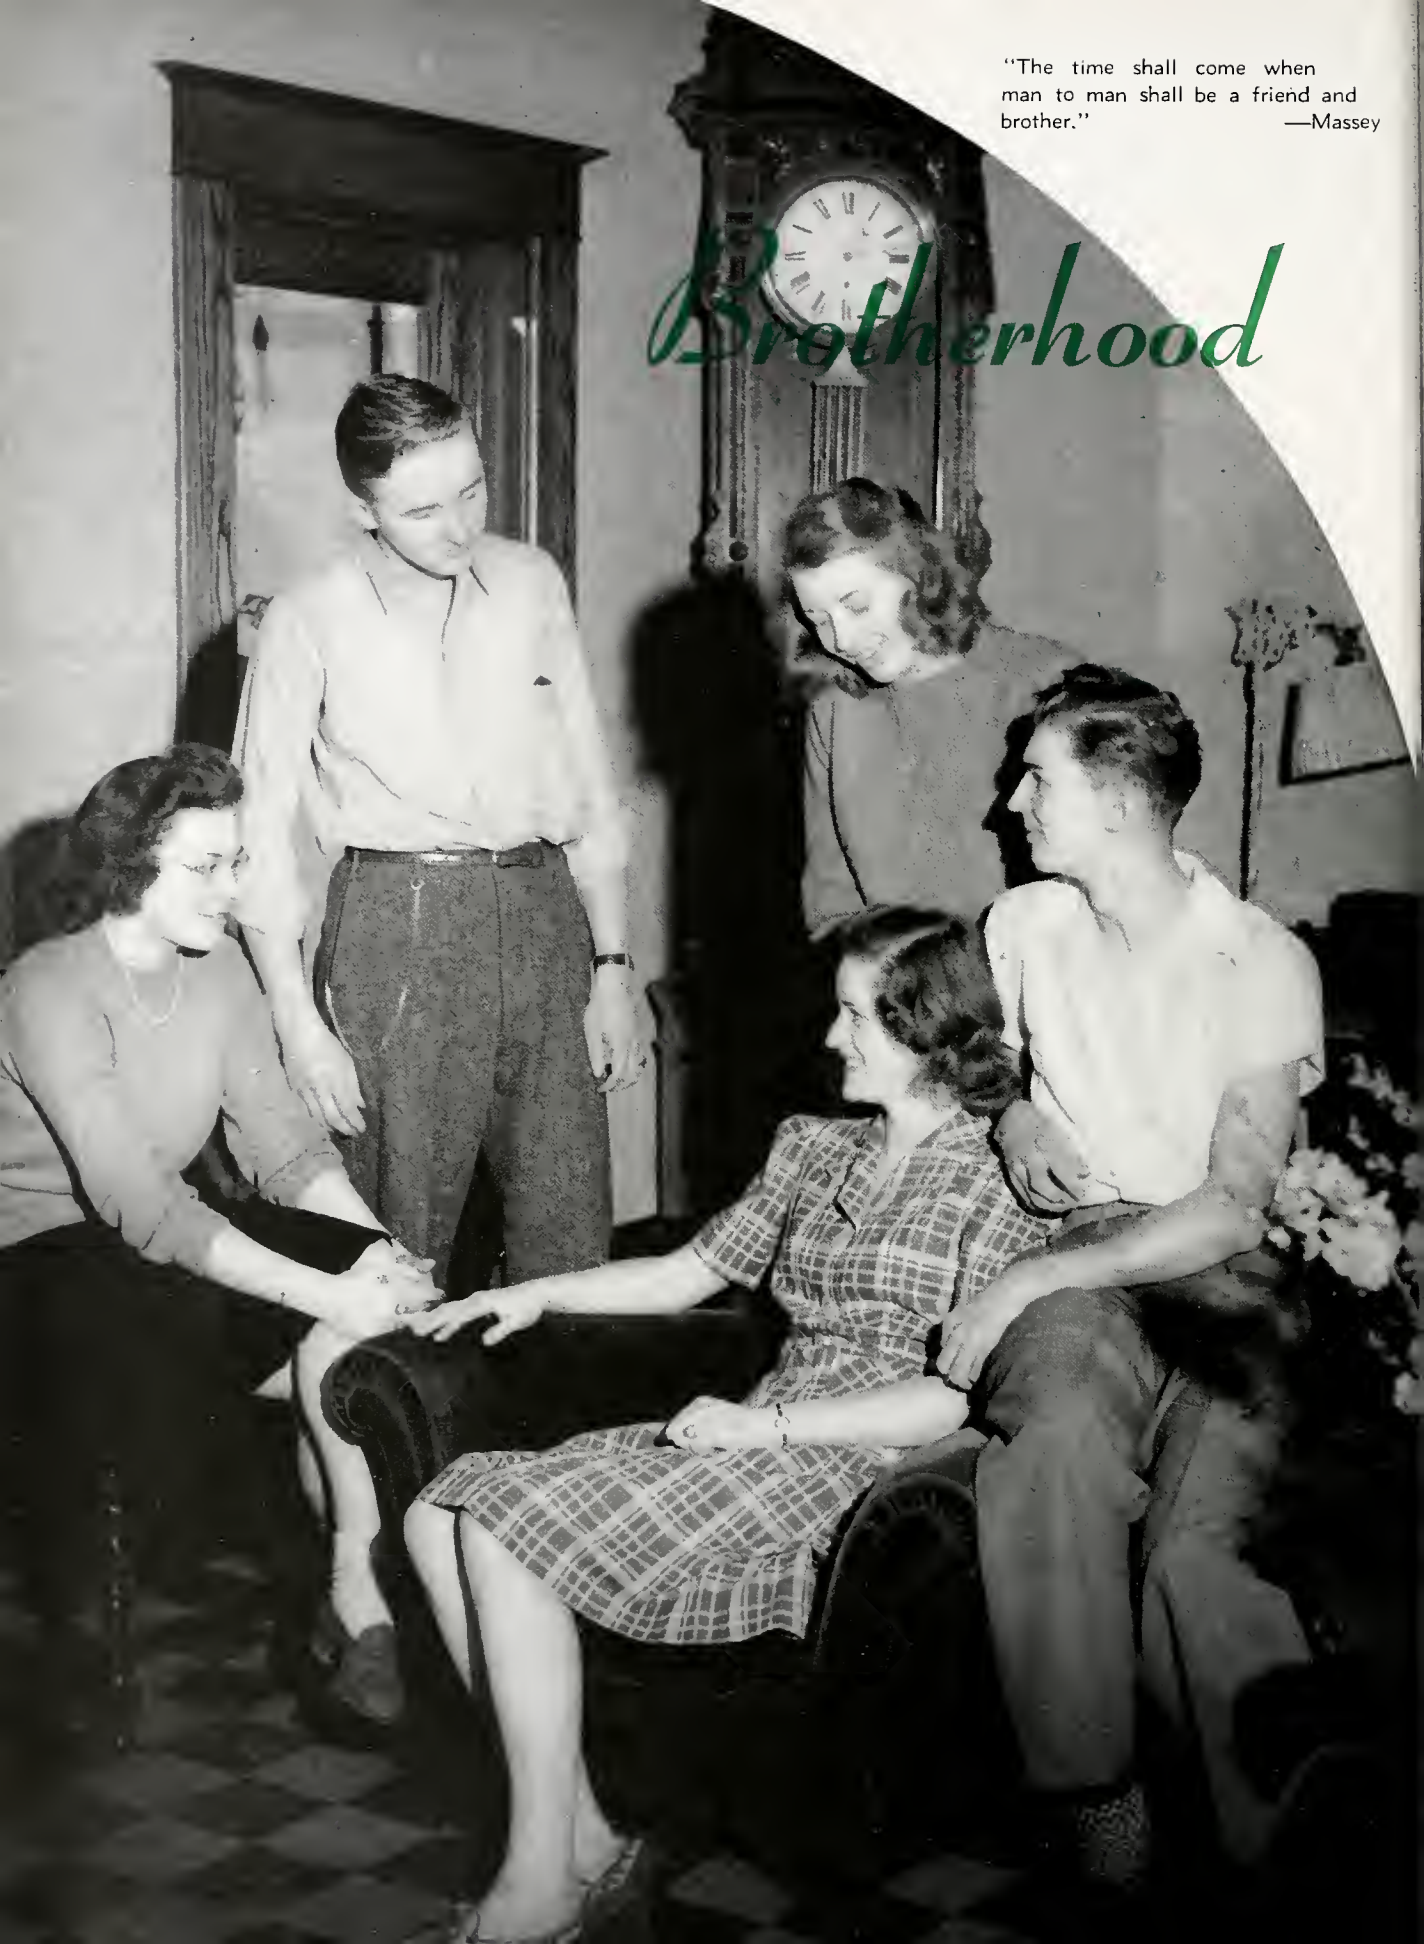

"The music in my heart I bore long after it was heard no more."

The bells remind us of

It would be erroneous to say that the sound of the bells is always pleasant to our ears. On a cold winter morning when the wind is whistling around the proverbial corner and we want more than anything else to sleep and sleep and sleep, then the sound of the bells reminds us of classes and unfinished assignments and getting back into the old grind. We scurry to catch up that psych book, dash madly down the hall and out into the cold air, bolt into the Ad building and at last reach the protecting sanctity of 107 as the last note of the bells dies away.

It is here in the classroom that we receive that larger vision of education. We acquire new philosophies of life, discard old ideas, and prepare for a fuller life in the future. It is here that we learn to be tolerant of different opinions, to suspend judgment in times of controversy and to persist in our academic growth.

"To know that which before us lies in daily life is the prime wisdom."
—Milton

President Schwalm is the composite of all that the term "college president" implies. We see him directing the efforts of the Winger Memorial Fund and we recognize the born administrator. We meet him in the halls, and his genial greeting signifies a friend. Then, too, there are the trips to the office where we meet him as an advisor, or, if we have strayed from the straight and narrow collegiate path, a disciplinarian. No matter how we meet him or where we see him, we know that the interests of Manchester and our welfare are ever the prime motives that govern his life.

A college in wartime is an ever changing entity. Students come and go. Regulations increase and become more complicated. New state requirements bring about the necessity for curriculum revision. But through all the change a stability of policy has been the backbone of Manchester College. Responsibility for Manchester's policy rests with the Administration. This policy-forming group performs its many and varied duties with a deliberateness that makes for efficiency.

To the Administration, the traditional ideals of Manchester are ever the inspiration to higher standards of scholarship, character development, and progressive and adequate college programs. As they strive toward these goals, the fruits of their labors become reality in a stronger, more effective Manchester.

The bells call the students

The Manchester College enrollment for the year 1944-45 was 410—women 315, men 95. Of this fact most of us have been acutely aware, for not only has it been the favorite joke of every chapel speaker, but it has been the disgust of every co-ed and the cause of no end of bewilderment to every male enrolled. It has brought about absurdities and difficult situations; situations which we have laughed at and griped about simultaneously. We have gotten used to having $3\frac{1}{2}$ women for every man. We can go dateless to any number of banquets without the slightest hesitation, and only the very unusual co-ed rates that coveted trip to the Ritz on Saturday night. Our coke dates are with the girls in the gang and our conversation is about the man who sends us that daily letter. Yes, the enrollment has played funny tricks with us this year.

But we wouldn't want to leave the impression that this is a strictly feminine school. We do have men, and although they can't boast a numerical balance with the co-eds, they still hold and execute the important campus offices.

All in all, ours is an interesting, well integrated, and wholesome student body that matriculates here at Manchester, heeding the hourly call of the bells.

Youth hath many charms
Hath many joys and much delight;
Even its doubts and vague alarms
By contrast make it bright.

We are the seniors! Short years ago we came to this campus—over two hundred strong. We came from all over the United States, a heterogeneous group, young, fun-loving, and eager to taste of the fruits of this thing called college. Within the sound of the bells we lived and learned and loved. Ours was a boundless energy. Ours was the exhilarating joy of being freshmen. But we, too, had our serious moments. December 7th and the declaration of war found us a sober and wondering group. What will this mean to us? That question was on our minds constantly. Our answer came swift and fast as our number began to dwindle and in place of the familiar faces that we were so used to, we saw empty seats and an honor roll in the hall. But we were undaunted. We went forth, and although our numbers were few, our enthusiasm was great. As sophomores, we infested the campus with ideas for bigger and better banquets, worked unceasingly on committees, and once in a while broke into the news with a club president, an oratorical contest winner, or a high point man on the football team. As juniors, we edited an AURORA, produced a May Queen, and had our share of candidates for Who's Who. Now, we are seniors. A small group we are. Our boundless energy has been tempered by our experiences, but we are still fun-loving and eager to taste the fruits of—no, not college life; that is past—the fruits of the professions we have been preparing for—the life that is ahead.

C L A S S O F 1 9 4 6

It is the fall of 1945 and we are the juniors! If you think you detect a note of pride in that statement—you are right! No longer are we borderline cases of "upperclassmenism". We are now definitely on the "upper" side. Witness the fact that our dignity and sophistication (ahem!) often causes us to be mistaken for seniors!

But we can't stop long to gloat over our new-found superiority. There's work to be done—and wherever work is being done you are sure to find a junior. We indulge in long hours of study, for we do not believe in letting our education interfere with our studies. On the other hand, studies cannot be allowed to overshadow education, so we head a myriad of campus activities.

We are running hither and yon editing the Aurora; we plan a Penny Carnival for the student body to enjoy; our parting gift to the seniors is a well-planned Junior-Senior reception; our gift to the school—a May Queen. You saw us starring in plays, putting on programs, decorating for banquets, debating, orating, playing first chair in the band, working in offices, studying. Yes, we were everywhere, for we are the juniors.

But all too soon, time passes and we approach nearer and nearer to our last year within the chime of the bells.

When he can't have Zook, Floyd Bantz settles for Rook . . . Let's play ball, Phyllis Jean Bogue . . . Paul Bowman, is there a sermon with a bit of humor in the offing? . . . Is dishwashing that much fun, Mabel Brower? . . . Betty Lou Bucher shouldn't work "sew" hard . . . Edna Craig, what's the score?

Grace Crichton should have insisted on technicolor; to see those red locks in black and white just isn't natural . . . Dorothy Dawson, we could make such beautiful music together . . . Are you waiting for an inspiration, Miriam Dear-dorff? . . . Please repeat, Caryl Denlinger, we can't keep our mind on the subject . . . Keep your mind on your calculus, Onda Dyson . . . Phyllis Eash believes in an intermission between lecture hours.

JUNIORS . . . "NEW FOUND SUPERIORITY" . . . AURORA

JUNIOR-SENIOR RECEPTION . . . MAJOR CARDS . . .

You didn't really want to study now, did you, Lois Eddy? . . . Bill Eicher views his audience between sentences . . . Betty Marie Ellis, if you keep chewing you may get to the point . . . Helen Fisher, does a married woman have time to pose for pictures? . . . Ruth Flanigan is all keyed up to play . . . Did you find that elusive microbe, Isabelle Foote?

Let's swing along with Viola Foraker . . . This takes a bit of concentration, eh, Ivan Fry? . . . Our records are in your hands, Mary Fujii . . . That sincere look which goes with this Dale Gibboney personality would inspire any church goer . . . Looks like Roberta Guthrie has her mind on more than filing . . . Everything adds up that this is Dorothy Harshbarger.

Let's look into the foods situation, Marcella Hauptert . . . Saving apples for the teachers the Jean Hecker way . . . May we snap your picture before you grade that paper, Loretta Hoff? . . . Betty Kensinger brings home the bacon . . . A bicycle fit for a King, right, Vada Lee? . . . Kathryn Kiracofe has a far away look in her eye and we wager she is thinking of India.

Marie Kitts stops a moment before going to class . . . We get our photographer, Bob Kneckel, to pose for us . . . Glenna Lambert writes letters as she waits for "late-leavers" . . . Doris Gene LeCount seems to have strings on a man . . . Eleanor Leininger finds time for a little outside reading . . . Evelyn Martindale is "cutting up" again.

JUNIORS . . . MAY QUEEN . . . EDUCATION COURSES . . .

COMMITTEE MEETINGS . . . NATIONAL ORATORY WINNER . . .

Anyone can plainly see that Gladden Mathis spends all his time studying . . . Do you suppose Imogene Mavis has found "the lost chord"? . . . One place is just as good as another to study; at least that's what Byron Miller thinks . . . Olive Miller, are you planning for your ideal home? . . . A break in the "daze" meditation for Richard Moomaw . . . Mabel Morehead, is this "the pause that refreshes"?

Wherever you find science you find Delmar Moyer . . . Helen Myers, did McLaughlin write that history book? . . . Apparently Lois Neher doesn't believe that an apple a day keeps the doctor away . . . We're not barking up the wrong tree; this is Gene Palsgrove . . . Little Black Sambo used to be my favorite story, Cathaleen Rouch . . . It doesn't "Schrock" anyone to see you here, Ralph.

Debater Gordon Shull prepares to "eliminate the negative" . . . There's music in the air and Betty Marie Shultz is responsible . . . Betty Shumaker gives us a smile after a hard day with the books . . . College has its more thoughtful moments, reflects Clair Siple . . . Anyway you look at it, Virginia Smith thinks the play's the thing . . . To go to class or not to go to class, is that the question, Christine Spangler?

Marie Sponseller caught with her "beau" . . . Ruth Steiner spends an evening listening to music . . . Martha Stinebaugh has a song in her heart . . . Have the psychology books come in yet, Miriam Stone? . . . Where is that air mail going, Martha Thompson? . . . Are you checking my account, Phoebe Ann Timmons?

A penny for your thoughts, Kathryn Ulrey . . . What, another studious junior, Eleanor Vining? . . . If it's a bedtime story, Mary Weeks, let's have it now . . . Catching up on correspondence, RosaBelle Weikel? . . . How was the game, Charlotte Wine? . . . Introducing—Connie Younker.

JUNIORS . . . MISTAKEN FOR SENIORS . . . LOYAL . . .

Did you ever see such green freshmen? All day long I've been answering dumb questions. Where is the Dean's office? What am I supposed to do with this trial program? Do I have to have my counselor sign it? You'd think they would know something! Say, what is this—an exasperated faculty member? Oh, no, my friend, this is a sophomore! You see, he has been through the mill, he knows all the answers. But this contempt isn't long lasting, for the freshmen find no better pals than their sophomore brothers.

An upper classman at last, the sophomore begins to have an increasing sense of responsibility and self-assurance. The old shackles of freshmen days are thrown off, and the sophomore takes his place as a potential campus leader. With a willingness to try anything, an unlimited amount of energy and a boundless enthusiasm for life, the sophomores have become worthy of the coveted title, "upperclassmen".

So this is Manchester. I've looked forward to this day for a long time. But there are so many strange faces and I haven't the vaguest idea what to do first. Guess I'd better find out where I am supposed to live. Hey, I thought there weren't any men here at Manchester, but here comes a horde of them—and they are coming toward me, too. Hello . . . yes, you may carry my bags . . . room 312 is what the letter said . . . oh, thank you! I'm going to like Manchester. Everyone is so friendly!

Already a week of college is over. My, how the time flies! I haven't even had time to be homesick and I thought sure that I would be. I did get a bit mixed up when I enrolled, but that nice sophomore who lives next door helped me to get straightened out. I'm sure that those placement tests will prove that I am a moron, but I don't care 'cause I'm happy. The courses are no snap, but then I did come here to study, didn't I? Here is something to write home about. I am going to have my first college date tonight. That cute fellow in comp has asked me to go to the show with him.

My mother never told me that college would be like this. Exams . . . term papers . . . options . . . book reports . . . daily assignments . . . extra credit work . . . lab experiments. When this term is over, I vow I am going to keep my work up to date so that I don't get so far behind! (It says.)

Where has this year gone? I hate to pack up and leave everyone and everything. But I'll be back in a few months and then, oh, happy day, I'll be a sophomore!

FRESHMEN . . . INITIATIONS . . . ACQUIRING POISE . . .

The bells proclaim . . .

We can't imagine college without its meetings and clubs. Almost any noon you will see us gathering in little groups here and there over the campus planning and discussing the extra-curricular work that supplements our sixteen hours of down-to-earth education.

"Will the following people meet in 107 at twelve thirty?" That familiar announcement is as characteristic of our life here as the very chime of the bells themselves. It is in these meetings and clubs that we learn to work with other people and to share ideas with them. This is our testing ground for the living we will do in years to come.

As new interests are anticipated and former interests die out, our clubs reflect these changes. Our extra-curricular program is flexible and designed to satisfy the widely divergent interests of the student body.

"And the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts."

STUDENT COUNCIL

Last fall the student body met to elect a student president. After the ballot had been taken and the votes had been counted, Al Hollenberg's name emerged as our choice. His being elected to direct the activities of our student body was the natural culmination of leadership in many campus activities.

Al's friendly, sincere attitude made him an essential part of Manchester's traditional friendliness. But the draft is no respecter of persons—not even student presidents—and Al was called to serve his country in work of national service at Camp Wellston, Michigan. A pre-med, Al plans to finish his education after the duration.

Sophomore class president . . . Sunday School teacher . . . untiring committee member . . . "Death" in "Totentanz Spiel" . . . student council member . . . student body president . . . Al.

Efficiently and unobtrusively the office of student body president was taken over by Ray Hoover. Versatility is the word which best describes our president.

His geniality, wit, and spirit of fair play make him a logical leader among us. Ray is one of the few remaining lettermen of a Burt-coached Manchester eleven.

Aside from being student president, Ray found time to act in two major dramatic productions, "Little Women" and "The Old Maid". He is an active student minister, a member of chapel choir, functions as a member of the Men's Student Government. He was junior class president, and—but need we go on? Versatility is the word that best describes—Ray.

It is 9:00 on Monday evening . . . the women's parlor is the setting . . . the scene, a meeting of the Student Council.

"The meeting will please come to order," says the student president. "We will have the minutes of the last meeting read at this time." The last meetings—let's look into these last meetings and see just what does go on. There's a meeting about Homecoming plans; another that planned clean-up day. That plan looks a bit unused. Oh, yes, we remember, it rained! Here is a discussion about the Handbook that the Council sponsored and over here—hmm—the social room problem. This page mentions a free show and scribbled across it is "huge success". Then there is the "Plantation Follies", with a formal banquet and the program—a revue of the old South. Well, I guess this Student Council does get a bit done.

BANQUETS . . . MAY DAY . . . FREE SHOW

But the meeting goes on and now they are discussing "new" business. May Day seems to be the most popular topic. We hadn't had one for two years, so no wonder they are enthusiastic. Banquets . . . outings . . . student problems. The work of the council goes on quietly, efficiently, and effectively!

WOMEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT

A sudden shriek of laughter . . . the sound of scurrying feet . . . a banging door . . . then a momentary silence—the gang down the hall is enjoying its usual prank.

In order to bring a measure of order out of this feminine chaos, the Women's Student Government functions quietly and efficiently. This representative body employs the proctor's system whereby a responsible person in each hall has the duty of keeping the dorm quiet during study hours. When the fire alarm sounds and the girls evacuate their rooms, the proctor takes a final tour of inspection in search of open windows or sleeping students. She is responsible for the safety of all in her hall.

Each year the government plays hostess to the dorm residents at the annual Christmas party. A big tree, Santa Claus, and a program give a festive atmosphere to Christmas at Oakwood.

Long after college days are over, we will remember our life in the dorm. The gang feeds, chats in the parlor after meals, buzzes from the man-of-the-moment, blown fuses, borrowed clothes, midnight cramming, friendliness, and the fun will all linger in our minds as a part of college that we want to cherish always.

MEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Lusty masculine shouts of laughter . . . buckets clattering loudly as they are hurtled down the stairs . . . radios blaring . . . heated arguments arising from numerous bull sessions . . . water fights in the showers . . . yes, Leroy, this eternal chaos is Blokewood.

When you are old and gray, and Little Tommy has just climbed on your knee and said, "Grandpa, tell me about college," your mind will go back, not to the class room, nor the lecture, nor that chapter you struggled over in calculus, but to the dorm—your college home. You'll tell Tommy about the time you soaked Ed Brown over the drinking fountain, the nights you played Rook until the wee hours of the morning and topped it off with a general free-for-all, the time you serenaded the fair inmates of Oakwood, the midnight jaunts down town in search of food—your memories of Blokewood. These are the things you will recall when college days are but dim, distant memories, for that is life in the dorm.

The dorm has its own particular form of law enforcement. Senators, a treasurer, a secretary, and a president make up the executive system of government. Their law enforcement is efficient, lenient though it may be.

STUDENT CHRISTIAN UNION

The Student Christian Union is really only a youngster among campus activities, but the work that it undertakes could well be enough to match that of the oldest organization on the campus.

From the moment we arrive on the campus to the last minute before we leave, we are conscious of the work of the Student Christian Union. Early in the fall we are welcomed to college via a letter from a campus pal. Our trunks and our baggage are taken to our rooms by helpful U members who meet us the minute we step off the bus. A U mixer helps us to get acquainted and feel as if we belong in this new world called college.

Hardly a day passes but we reap the benefits of the U. Morning watch, grace before meals, music in the dining hall, Wednesday evening dinner programs, magazines in the dormitories, the chime of the bells, and the quiet hour at night and all are the outcome of the untiring U members.

And when our social life gets a bit dull and we long for a bit of fun, the U is prepared and we enjoy a Town Hall meeting or an enthusiastic campfire, hot chili after an evening of carolling, or the light hearted gaiety of the Valentine banquet.

But U members aren't selfish and so when the call to service comes we find them volunteering of their time to go out and work in the community on work camp day. They gave $366.44 to the World Student Service so that students in China, Greece, prison camps, India, and all the war-torn countries of the world might have a portion of the abundance that is ours.

So, at the close of its second year as an activity, the Student Christian Union is the sponsor of numerous social functions, the instigator of various service projects, and the stimulator of an enriched personal life for each of us.

FRESHMAN SOCIETY

Remember way back when freshman society was compulsory for all freshmen? When there was a healthy rivalry between Lincoln Adelphia, Mathea Rhetoria, and Philomaneta—remember? We won't be the ones to say that "them days are gone forever", but at least that is history for this year. Society has been voluntary—and, one of the most popular activities among freshmen! The society chose to be known as the Lincoln Adelphia freshman society.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Johnson, the club began its year's activities with an all fools' party. Then followed a year of enthusiastic activity. Impromptu speeches—society sings—pantomimes—a backward party—Mrs. Cordier's lecture on Russia—fun in a literary fashion.

Who said freshman society would die out if put on a voluntary basis? Not these energetic society members—we assure you of that!

AURORA STAFF

Events in the life of an Aurora.

Editor elected in the spring of 1944—the staff is chosen—school is out, but the editor is busy with plans for the Aurora—September is here and the Aurora is beginning to take form—the Aurora drive, a stupendous political campaign—payments are receivable—conferences with the editor—contracts are signed—all is going as planned—wait, what's this?—sorry, no covers before June—what to do—investigations, and final decisions to make—the Aurora shall be up to par—books to be out in June—final rush of copy writing—all ads are in—typists busy—photographers click the last camera—editor tears her hair over last minute details—whew, it's done!—the Aurora is completed in the spring of 1945—we send our book to you, fellow students—from here on its life is in your hands. We hope you like it—we do!

OAK LEAVES STAFF

"Hey!" That's got a deadline on it, too! And let's have a big write-up for a change; that item's going to have a 48-point head. Oh, yes, cover yer beats!

Conveying his weekly "inspiring" talk to his staff, the editor succeeds in reaching his ultimate goal—printing a top-rate college paper—Oak Leaves.

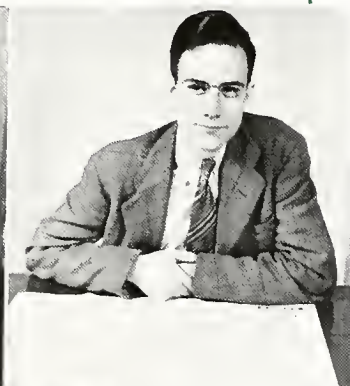

Containing the "dope" on campus events—sports, a new feature, "Those Who Serve", gossip (of course), and the editor's brainstorm, editorials—the Oak Leaves provides the reasons for the staff's harried reporters, "why editors get gray" and a battered typewriter that expresses its resentment for work by its temperamental moments.

But despite obstacles such as a broken printing press, short weeks, and the like, the staff has been able to print Oak Leaves in the traditional M. C. manner—all the news by Thursday . . . or Friday.

DEBATE

"A honey of a case" . . . "A screwball case if I ever saw one" . . . "I don't care what it says in the Monthly Labor Review" . . . "You threw your case right down on the table, but the other team just didn't pick it up"—all this and more, too, ejaculated from the lips of the exasperated judges as they listened to Manchester's debaters present the merits and demerits of compulsory arbitration.

Traveling to Normal, Illinois, the varsity squad matched wits with twelve different teams and brought home seven winning decisions. Several weeks later they invaded Terre Haute to participate in a tournament sponsored by Indiana Central.

The debate season would never be complete without the annual Manchester tournament. This year there were participants from six different schools on our campus, the number of participants being necessarily reduced by government restrictions on transportation.

The debatable question this year was, Resolved: That the Federal Government should enact legislation requiring the settlement of all labor disputes by compulsory arbitration.

ORATORY

Manchester is justifiably proud of her orators. This year our representatives have not only won top state honors, but they have won national recognition in their respective contests. Winners of the state peace oratorical contest, Gordon Shull, received honorable mention in the national contest with his thought-provoking manuscript, "Strategy for Statesmen"; Mary Fujii presented the experiences of Japanese relocation in her original oration, "A Home Without a Fence". Mary not only won the state contest, but also came in first in the inter-state contest. Our winner in the men's division, Joe Mow, presented a plea for justice to India with his oration, "Who Fear Not the King". Joe ranked third in the national contest at Chicago. We are extremely proud of these three orators who have brought these honors to Manchester.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA

Unit plan on the Future Teachers of America

Time allotment—about nine months

Aims—To organize prospective teachers into a group whereby they can become better oriented for the task that they will undertake in our public schools.

Assignments—Attendance at the by-monthly meetings and an interest in the organization.

Projects—Send twelve juniors and seniors to the State Teachers' Association meeting at Indianapolis.

Invite the executive secretary of the Indiana State Teachers' Association to speak at the first meeting.

Installation of officers.

Renovation of the college woods picnic grounds and a picnic supper.

Presentation of the puppet shows, "Jack and the Bean Stalk" and the "Wishing Fairy".

Sponsor an all-school entertainment with a pirate theme.

Miscellaneous meetings, parties, and projects.

Evaluation of this unit—A feeling of satisfaction at having completed a full and profitable year.

TRI ALPHA

"The play's the thing—the play's the thing"—and another successful year of Tri Alpha is launched.

Initiation skits . . . Follies of 1944 with Conga line . . . chorus girls and blues singers . . . "Moon River"—a lazy stream of dreams, sail on, dream on, drift on, dream on as you listen to the idylls of romance . . . "The House of the Brain", gruesome, weird . . . humor and romance in the "Ladder Under the Maple Tree".

The spell of the lights . . . the dim outlines of the audience . . . the feel of the stage . . . the smell of the paint—once they are in your blood, the fascination of the theatre has you in its grasp and you are forever held by the lure of the velvet curtains. Under the skillful guidance of Mrs. Wampler, Tri Alpha again receives bouquets for industry, aggressiveness, perfection of performance, and fine entertainment.

GERMAN CLUB

The ponderous work of a committee meeting is suddenly interrupted by the entrance of a blushing, very much flustered German student. "Ich weisz nicht was soll es bedenten," he recites, as he looks warily at his upperclassman "guard" who followed him through the door. Finally the avalanche of guttural sounds is over and the "freshie" bolts out the door. In reply to the perplexed look on the faces of committee, the "guard" informs them that this is a part of German Club initiation.

Oh my, what some people have to go through to get a degree!

The activities of the German Club have run the gauntlet from the sublime to aforementioned ridiculous. Professor Schirkegruber . . . song fests . . . listening to German operatic arias . . . poetry contest . . . cathedral atmosphere . . . stained glass windows . . . candles . . . second-year German students assuming cherubic poses . . . carols . . . all this, and German, too!

An eye to world affairs . . . peacetime conscription . . . orations . . . Dumbarton Oaks . . . world citizens . . . news broadcast at the dinner hour . . . letters to congressmen . . . International Club.

The International Club launched their year's activities with a weiner roast and business meeting at the home of Dr. Cordier. At this time Dr. Keim was asked to succeed Dr. Cordier as sponsor of the club.

Each year the International Club tries to bring to the campus some outstanding speaker on world affairs. This year Mrs. Betty Barzin, noted Belgian political writer and lecturer spoke to the students, faculty, and community. She has lectured extensively on international affairs both in the east and on the west coast.

The club sent members of its organization to the various churches of the town to inform all parishioners about the bills being considered by Congress in regard to peacetime conscription. These club members attempt to instill in others their enthusiasm for world affairs.

HOOSIER HIKING CLUB

Transportation is being rationed, but hiking is free . . . so reads a chapel announcement, and we know that the Hoosier Hikers are once again on the march.

Rescuing fish at Isaak Walton's pond . . . gazing at the stars . . . chuckling over Chief's fishing yarns . . . food at the Oaks after an evening of frolic in the snow . . . quiz programs. The Hoosier Hikers set out last spring to make concrete their interest in the birds on our campus by constructing a bird "restaurant" in back of the biology building. There are Hoosier hikers—and Hoosier Hikers. Some are one-star hikers; others, two-star, three-star, or four-star hikers, the latter being the aristocrat of all hikers, the master hikers. The ratings are the result of a point system based on bird, animal, tree, and flower identifications.

These hikers are enthusiasts for the great out-of-doors, but when severely cold weather keeps them indoors they are undaunted. Refusing to be fenced in by an icy whim of Mother Nature, they study bird and animal life by the help of colored slides and tramp the trails of the Grand Canyon and the Carlsbad Caverns through the magic of films.

SCIENCE CLUB

Take a Friday evening club hour . . . find a group of live-wire students . . . add the advice and counsel of Dean Holl . . . combine these with the scientific urge and you have the Science Club, Manchester style.

This year's activities of the Science Club have run the gauntlet of variety. Scientific speeches, parties, demonstrations, an exhibition of the art of palmistry, business meetings, a handwriting analysis, and almost anything else that a scientific heart might desire.

When an S. O. S. was sent out for different clubs to sponsor all-school parties, these alert scientists came up with one of the most unique entertainments of the year. The Science Cafeteria, as it was called, was a series of demonstrations, exhibits, and displays by the physics, biology, and chemistry departments. The patron at this cafeteria could have his false teeth pointed out by ultraviolet ray, he could hear his voice transmitted by a light beam, see gold made from zinc, water boiled at room temperature, and rayon made before his very eyes. And, since even the scientific man gets hungry, the evening was topped off with refreshments made by the Home Ec. Club. If this be science, we want more of it.

The inquiring mind . . . meetings . . . the chem. building . . . that lingering odor of experiments . . . gay parties . . . fun combined with education . . . the Science Club.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

With an eye to practicability, the members of the Home Ec. Club meet to discuss such activities as cake decorating, flower arrangements, and etiquette. A "pressing situation" introduced the girls to some tricks and correct practices in pressing clothes. The fall term style show featured the appropriate selection and use of the collegiate wardrobe. Club members modeled formals, traveling apparel, sweaters and skirts for school wear, date dresses, and suitable accessories for all occasions.

But once in awhile these decorators, seamstresses, and culinary artists take time to participate in folk games, study parliamentary procedure, and go on picnics.

A project sponsored by the club was the making of scrapbooks for the service men at Camp Atterbury, Indiana.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Athletics a la femme . . . basketball . . . shrieks of excitement . . . the crack of the bat . . . a volley over the net . . . games . . . frolic. There may be shortages in food, gas, and men, but there is no shortage of activity on the part of the Women's Athletic Association.

With the crack of the bat against the ball and the swish of a racquet in the crisp, cold air, the girls began a busy year of sports. Biking and hiking provided an outlet for the gypsy spirit and skating, ping pong, badminton, and volleyball have supplied a way of getting rid of that excess energy that pervades any college campus. The big activity for the winter was the round robin basketball tournament. At the track meet party the W. A. A.'s rooted for their favorite teams and swung their partners in an old fashioned folk game.

W. A. A. again added that traditional touch to Homecoming festivities by making and selling black and gold chrysanthemums.

CHAPEL CHOIR

It is Wednesday morning and as the organ begins to play, a hush falls over the student body assembled in the chapel for our weekly worship program. The soft folds of the velvet curtains begin to quiver and as they open, we see the maroon-robed Chapel Choir before us. The Wednesday morning appearance is the primary assignment of this choral group. Frequent appearances at the Manchester churches are also prominent on the Chapel Choir calendar. Not to be overlooked is the assistance given by the Chapel Choir in the religious drama, "Woman of Samaria".

The Chapel Choir is a small, but select group. It was necessary to keep the choir small this year in order to keep the choral balance that has been so characteristic of the chapel choirs of years past. The beauty of interpretation for which Halladay-trained-voices are noted reaches its peak in the melodious presentation of such numbers as "He, Watching Over Israel", by Mendelssohn; "From All That Dwell Below the Skies", by Thompson; and the antiphon, "The Storm on Lake Galilee". Especially appreciated by the student body were the negro spirituals, "Listen to the Lambs" and "He's the Lily of the Valley", and Nobel Cain's arrangement of "Roll Chariot".

CANTILENA

There is a hush over the chapel as the curtains part; then, a murmur of approval as we see before us a "bevy of fair women"—the Cantilena Choir is about to present their annual Christmas program.

Did anyone study in chapel that morning? We venture a wager that there were very few who did. But even the most studious among us abandoned our books when Dr. Flueckiger's beautiful arrangement of "Silent Night" filled the hall with its melodious strains.

These music lovers are the answer to any director's dream. Dr. Flueckiger has but to suggest that a brisk walk at 5:00 A. M. will put their voices in the pink of condition, and they are all setting their alarm clocks for the cold, dark hour of 4:30. Is Voice Culture their ultimate aim? Well, not quite. But it sure is fun to serenade your director at 5:00 in the morning.

The Choir has made several appearances at Walnut Street Church, and assisted Tri Alpha in its spring production, "The Woman of Samaria". Much larger than in previous years, the Choir is the outlet for the talents of Manchester's promising young songsters.

CIVIC SYMPHONY

There are many benefits derived from a student ticket, but one of the most pleasing of all is the admission to the three concerts of the North Manchester Civic and Manchester College Symphony Orchestra. This organization, under the direction of Dr. S. L. Flueckiger, is noted for concerts of definite public appeal.

The first concert of the year gave the music lovers a chance to hear Mary Alice Dilling, former resident of North Manchester, an outstanding cellist.

Featured as the main attraction of the second concert was the presentation of Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 5. This symphony has long been a popular concert work and is popularly referred to as the "Victory" symphony because of the similarity of the four note figure to the Morse Code signal for the letter "V".

According to tradition, the spring concert is always the "Pop" concert. From the choices voted on by the audience, the favorites are discovered and the "Pop" concert results. Among the numbers on this program was an arrangement of Beethoven's "Faith", by our own Manchester student, Betty Marie Shultz.

BAND

By four o'clock most of us breathe a sigh of relief and call it a day—but not a band member. To him, four o'clock means climbing up to the third floor of the ad building for a bi-weekly rehearsal.

In the fall, four o'clock called him out to the football field for marching. Left, right . . . left, right . . . counter march . . . left, right . . . it was hard at times—and cold, but when that formation was finally perfected, every band member in the group would heartily agree that it was worth it. Behind each performance of the band are long, tedious hours of practice—hours that a band member is willing to give because to him there is nothing more satisfying than work well done.

The band was divided this year into several small pep bands which played at the basketball games. To the atmosphere of the activity on the hard-wood floors, the cheers, and the hot dogs, the bands added that final collegiate touch of perfection.

The band climaxed the year with its annual spring concert.

LIBRARY STAFF

The girls behind the desk . . . books . . . fines . . . reserve lists . . . magazines . . . information . . . bound volumes . . . service with a friendly smile . . . the library staff in action!

The library staff sponsors Book Week and this year collaborated with F. T. A. to present before the student body a panorama of characters from the pages of fiction—"Our Hearts Were Young and Gay", "Rebecca", and "The Robe". Through posters and book displays they help to keep current books and magazines before the students and faculty. This, in brief, is the life of a librarian as we know it. But they have a private life, too, that we are not so familiar with. Every Thursday evening they abandon the library to an "extra" and meet together for fun—entertainment and instructions. Even here their books are present, too, and we find them featuring character sketches, "Moon River", and Christmas of other lands.

Through all of their activities, the staff works with a spirit of friendliness and cooperation.

COLLEGE WOMAN'S CLUB

A record of Manchester's activities would be far from adequate without some mention of the College Woman's Club. This organization is made up of faculty women and faculty wives who combine to sponsor social activities and encourage cultural advancement on our campus.

This year the outstanding activity of the club was the community exhibit which honored a beloved friend and patron of the college, Mrs. M. R. Gardner. The exhibit displayed objects of interest collected on travels at home and abroad, homemade craftwork, quilts, crocheted pieces, knitted work, embroidery, glassware, and antique brassware. Mrs. Gardner presided at the reception with a charm that endeared her to all the students and friends who met her.

The bells shout the scores

The Bells of Manchester sing in praise of her victories in athletic events. Many students who spent their first year of college life here last year had never known the sound of chimes after football, basketball, or other Spartan triumphs because intercollegiate sports were lacking from the campus. This winter saw the resumption of basketball here at Manchester and consequently the revival of an old tradition. The signal triumph of the Spartans over Huntington gave students the first opportunity to be somewhat dismayed and then overjoyed upon hearing the chime of the bells. The fighting Spartan spirit received many setbacks in athletic events this year and was handicapped by loss of manpower, but still our teams came through to afford the tempered bells of Manchester a release from their undesired slumber to cry out in unison to all the world that the black and gold banners had been carried to victory again.

"Manchester College, loyal to you,
We will ever be.
Spread abroad your fame and honor,
Cheer to victory."

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Coach Merkle—When it had been decided by the athletic committee of the college to resume basketball, one problem was posed foremost in their minds. This was in regard to the selection of a man who would be able to adequately lead the Spartan quintette with a strong, firm hand. As the weeks passed by it became increasingly evident that war years are a poor time to find a coach who can successfully fill these requisites.

However, Manchester came to realize that we had such a man in our midst, or virtually so. Coach Merkle had been combining his spare hours away from his thriving hatchery business to abetting the teaching staff of Chester High School when he was approached by Manchester to assume the added responsibilities of rounding out our cage squad. Nevertheless he generously accepted the proposal and started work immediately to promote our basketball possibilities. Within the short time allotted to him before the opening game with Huntington, Merkle had called together around 30 men who were interested in the sport. None of them had any experience other than in high school and consequently it was necessary to have plenty of practice.

Once the varsity had been fairly well arranged Uncle Sam interceded to upset the proverbial "apple cart". Harold Kindy and Lowell Brumbaugh, both sparkling with potentialities, were enlisted in the Navy leaving two vacancies to be filled with only two weeks remaining before the game against Huntington. To Coach George Merkle, however, goes much of the credit for filling in the gaps quickly and efficiently. Merkle then had on his hands the training of his otherwise "green" crew. The boys under Merkle's guidance began picking up the tricks of the trade to such an extent that they came away from the first game of the season with a clear-cut, resounding triumph over Huntington.

This year the student council held try-outs for cheerleaders. From the contestants, three co-eds were chosen. Ruth Flanigan, Betty Kiracofe, and Barbara Carleton appeared regularly in their black and gold booster outfits to lead the student body in organized cheering at the basketball games.

Ruth, Betty, and Barbara

After a brief respite from basketball, Manchester resumed the game November 30, 1944, at Huntington, in a very successful manner. Hitting the basket from all angles, the Spartan five downed the Huntingtonites, 53 to 23. Lanky "Andy" Mathis, sharpshooting junior, took scoring honors with twelve points. It was the eighth win in nine years over Huntington. From the first tip-off on, the game was strictly a Manchester affair. The halftime score was 27 to 7.

The Huntington game served to warm the boys up for the second game of the season which promised and proved to be no "breeze". This was the annual homecoming fracas with Ball State. The Muncie school brought in a crew of sharpshooters that had done battle the week before with Butler University, one of the powerhouses of the Indiana 1944 conference. This same aggregation nipped all Spartan scoring threats in the bud for an overwhelming margin at the half. In the next quarter the Black and Gold staged a brilliant recovery to tie the game 38 to 38, but from then on our lack of replacements began to tell as the Ball Staters, bringing in fresh re-inforcements, brought the ball into our defenses time and again and dealt a death blow to Spartan hopes. At the end of the game the score was 52-41.

MEN'S INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Row one: Kreider, Bowman, Hara, Moomaw, Sleed

Row two: Schechter, Hoover, Hay, Ramer

Following the nip and tuck Ball State battle, the Merklemen, little realizing they were due for another heartbreaker, began preparation for the last game before Christmas vacations. On December 14, the squad met the Concordia Cadets, who at that time were fielding a 1.000 average and vying for first place in the Indiana Conference against Butler. Manchester trailed the visitors for the first three quarters before getting on top of the heap. In the fourth quarter they literally exploded on the Cadets, bringing the count even-up at 37 with a minute and a half to go. Again Lady Luck intervened for the opposition throwing the home boys off balance for a 43-41 loss.

Still sticking to the traditional Manchester slogan of "stay in and pitch", the team put in extra hours of practice for the post-Christmas tilt with Butler January 6. Along with the New Year the squad had new spirit, even in view of their previous two defeats handed them during waning minutes of play. However, the league leading Bulldogs were yet to heap more misfortune on the struggling Spartans. It was the same story as before; in this game the Spartans held off the powerful Butler hoopsters until the last quarter, when Bulldog re-inforcements broke the 30-30 stalemate to win 48 to 35. In the return game on January 13, Butler, with the state title near at hand, proceeded to romp their visitors 63-44, thus avenging the previous near-damper thrown at them by our determined Spartans.

On January 17 came the return bout with Ball State. The Redbirds succeeded in easily annihilating the Manchester five which continued to battle against overwhelming odds. This score, 62-29, proved to be the highest tally run up against us all season.

January 20, the fourth heartbreaker of the season was handed the Spartans by the Central Normal teachers, who edged out their host 64-54 in a hotly contested game. Manchester fired her big siege guns early in the first quarter to move into a lead which proved to be only temporary. In the last half Gordon Kever, sophomore ace, burst forth to spark a rally which reached its climax by knotting the count 44 all. Again it was the same story as our boys began to exhaust themselves with no hope for replacements.

This defeat proved the anti-climax to the Manchester blues as the team bounced over Huntington in a return engagement January 27. Huntington opened scoring but quickly went into eclipse as the Spartans romped into the final stanza with a 23-9 count. At the finish the count was 43-21.

On February 3 the Cadets entertained us. As in the December game, Concordia was in first place on the conference ladder, still with a 1.000 batting average against Hoosier competition. The Ft. Wayne crowd after 3.99 quarters began to feel that Manchester at last had received the nod from Dame Fortune as we had held a slight margin throughout the game. However, in the remaining 30 seconds of play the Cadets racked up a total of five points to pluck a 43-41 victory from the Spartans' plume.

On February 20 was the sign for the end of another basketball season for Manchester as the boys traveled to Danville for a rendezvous with Central Normal. The Danville boys were courteous hosts but failed to slow down on the court as they mopped up in a flashing display of long shots which split the meshes for a 67-34 climax.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Physical fitness goes hand in hand with an up-to-date college program. Under the leadership of Miss Darley, our physical education department has reached a new peak in all around sports activity for co-eds.

Since several terms of physical education are required, each girl can stagger these terms throughout her college career, thus giving an opportunity for participation in different types of activity.

Badminton, deck tennis, softball, tennis, archery, skating, hockey, folk games, and many other games are offered in these classes.

The winners of the women's intramural basketball tourney—Barb, Ginna, and Grace are aiming for a bull's eye . . . minute glimpses of women's athletics.

Captain Stebbins, Lutz, Deeter, Timmons, Harshbarger, Vining, Sloderbeck, Colbert, Bond

During the last few terms, some of the classes have served as guinea pigs for experiments in developing muscle strength in feet, legs, and hips. A preliminary testing period was followed by exercises and then another testing. The results of this experiment are going to be the basis of a Master's thesis, we are told.

Building strong, healthy bodies is a full-time job, but Miss Darley never seems to tire of it and her diligence is reaping results.

The courts are just the place on warm, spring days . . . volley ball for invigorating exercise . . . sports as you like them.

The bells announce . . .

The majestic strains of Lohengrin break the quiet of a warm autumn evening. Another Manchester graduate has just been married and the bells ring mellow and clear with the happiness of love.

The community, alumni, and friends of the college gather to honor the birthday of a dearly loved citizen and respected ex-president, and again the bells ring with a simple dignity that reflects the life that was dedicated to building a strong Manchester. Thus do the bells of Manchester announce special events.

This spring the bells have had a very special message to herald to our student body. Each morning during the convening of the San Francisco Conference, the bells have called us to pause at whatever we might be doing to offer silent prayers for the success of that great conference. May the success of this conference be such that the bells will be ringing in a world of peace and international cooperation.

"Through the balmy air of night how they

DRAMA

Premier performance . . . Cee Lawhorn . . . unique stage setting . . . fine cast . . . "The Outer Veil"—Mrs. Wampler's touch of perfection.

The plot: Stanley Richards, a blind author, who lost his sight through a hunting accident, has fallen in love with his companion-secretary, Nadeen Mitchell, unmindful of the birthmark on her face.

The cast: Starring in this initial presentation were Virginia Smith as Nadeen, and Floyd Bantz as Stanley. The excellent work of a strong supporting cast made this a Tri Alpha success long to be remembered.

The author: Cee Lawhorn is really Orpha E. Stutzman, a graduate of Manchester College in 1935. While a student here she took the lead in two campus productions, "Outward Bound" and "Pharoah's Daughter". She has been doing writing of both poetry and drama in her spare time.

"The Maker of Dreams" . . . a fantasy in one act . . . an impetuous Pierotte . . . an adoring Pierette . . . the kindly old Maker of "the dreams that float about this musty world". This charming, imaginative play was presented in chapel before the student body as Tri Alpha's yearly chapel program.

"The Woman of Samaria" . . . an Easter pageant . . . elaborate sets . . . community participation . . . another dramatic success—Mrs. Wampler's creative genius. "The Woman of Samaria" starred Caryl Denlinger in the title role and Glen Campbell playing the part of The Christ.

CAMPUS GUESTS

College is not all book larnin', thanks to various outside forces that are constantly at work. One of the outstanding organizations which helps to bring variety and entertainment to the campus is the Public Programs Committee. This year the programs were of such variety and quality as to appeal to almost every interest group on the campus.

The Chicago Artists' Trio featured the lyric soprano, Agatha Lewis; pianist, Marion Hall; and the violinist, David Moll. Mr. Moll appears currently with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Josef Wagner, pianist-composer, provided one of the noteworthy programs of the year. This artist of European and American fame presented not only an evening concert, but conducted a music clinic for the benefit of the student body.

The unique presentation of "Ten Men and a Queen" by the dramatist Don Carter will long be remembered by all who saw him.

Wm. Beahm of Bethany Biblical Seminary appeared at the regular chapel hour.

Rev. Harry Zellers, well-known Brethren youth leader and minister, led the pre-Easter activities of the college with chapel talks, individual interviews, and a speech at the "U" meeting.

Appearing before the student body at the regular chapel hour was Rabbi Singer.

These and other outstanding programs were presented before the student body this year.

COLLEGE BANQUETS

Social highlights of the year are the college banquets.

Plantation Follies . . . southern atmosphere . . . fried chicken . . . cotton balls . . . minstrel show . . . paging Miss Jones . . . graceful waltzers . . . "Old Man River" . . . music . . . jokes.

Valentine Banquet . . . hearts, hearts, and still more hearts . . . good food . . . laughter . . . clever program . . . courtin' through the ages . . . "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" . . . sweethearts reign.

There is exhilaration in the air when Manchester is banqueting. Laughter is heard in the halls. There are shrieks of joy when a corsage arrives to adorn that rustling formal. Men don the traditional Manchester "tux" of best suit and bow tie. Guests are greeted with enthusiastic gusto. Manchester is on parade, for tonight we go to the banquet!

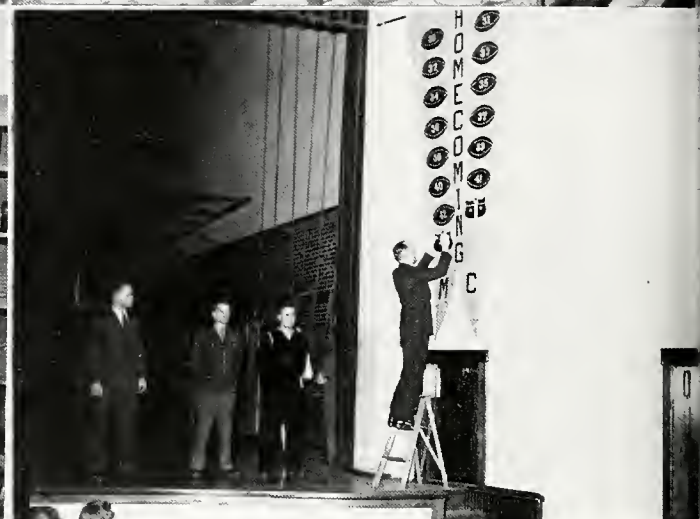

WINGER MEMORIAL BANQUET

A man's greatness cannot be measured by mere words. His life, the people he has helped, and the deeds he has done are all living memorials to him—so it is with President-emeritus Winger.

Manchester College could almost be said to have been the child of Otho Winger. During 30 years he grew with it through babyhood days, through its adolescence and the stage where it approached maturity. In 1911 he was appointed president of Manchester College and with this, began its progress and development through trying but fruitful years.

It was with a deep sense of gratitude and reverence that the college paid tribute to President-emeritus Winger on his 67th birthday, this October 23. The Fine Arts Building which will be erected after the war as part of our tribute, is one more memorial which will stand to remind us of the love and service that has been a part of the building of our college and which will be carried on down through the years to come.

The social room . . . couples . . . games . . . records playing . . . the hostess . . . comfortable furniture . . . attractive . . . inviting.

The museum . . . open on Wednesday night . . . stuffed animals . . . antique furniture . . . curios . . . birds . . . snakes . . . interesting . . . "hands off".

The seminar room . . . gift of Mrs. Calvin Ulrey . . . pride of the college . . . beauty . . . trustee meetings . . . Brethren literature.

Homecoming ceremony . . . speeches . . . pinning the shield on the Homecoming banner . . . service men . . . the college hymn . . . enthusiasm . . . old friends . . . alumni . . . the band . . . a Manchester tradition.

The sound of brass . . . the roll of drums . . . banners held high . . . shouts of enthusiasm . . . a smiling Roosevelt . . . an aggressive Eleanor . . . handsome candidate Dewey . . . a charming Mrs. Dewey . . . speeches . . . music . . . voting . . . a landslide for Dewey . . . and triumph for the 1945 Aurora.

Grab your sax! . . . Hey, where's that booster card? . . . Who has the trailer? . . . Don't forget to yell! . . . Hurry or the Republicans will beat us! Yeah, Roosevelt! . . . Dewey . . . Dewey! . . . Just the kind of a night for fun . . . the night of the election . . . the night of the political rally.

Bum week! . . . Men with potential beards and old clothes . . . an occasional clean-shaven lad who didn't want to be embarrassed at the Friday showdown . . . good-natured joshing . . . gals parading outfits of stripes and plaids; polka dots and prints; red, yellow, and purple, as they tried to steal the thunder of the "bums" . . . the climactic open house at Blokewood . . . fun a-la Manchester tradition . . . Bum Week.

Oakwood . . . girl's dorm . . . dining halls . . . social room . . . the parlors . . . Miss Wise . . . Mrs. Netzley . . . 184 . . . ten o'clock curfew . . . the dorm.

Blokewood . . . men . . . noise . . . 191-R1 . . . empty on Friday nights . . . bicycles on the porch . . . radios blaring . . . Mrs. Gnagey.

Ad Building . . . class rooms . . . offices . . . chapel . . . three flights of stairs . . . bookstore . . . practice rooms . . . chime tower.

Library . . . Miss Forney . . . study . . . reserve books . . . periodicals . . . museum . . . AURORA office . . . seminar room . . . T. K. A. room . . . art department.

Oaks . . . banana splits . . . cokes . . . John and Margaret . . . self service . . .
9:30 rush . . . tables for two . . . A. R.'s coffee . . . sociability.

The fountain . . . students . . . benches . . . committee meetings . . . occasional classes . . . relaxation . . . tradition.

The river . . . Kenapocomoco . . . narrow paths . . . couples . . . box lunches
. . . the dam . . . ice skating . . . hiking . . . beauty.

The kitchen . . . ration points . . . no butter . . . the cooks . . . Mrs. Dailey . . . waitresses . . . pies . . . dishwasher . . . indispensable.

GANGS

Gangs . . . nucleus of college social life . . . friends . . . midnight feeds
 . . . gossip . . . confidences . . . pranks . . . the gang.

Gangs . . . congenial companions . . . money lenders . . . food from home
. . . griping . . . exchange of philosophies . . . frolic . . . the gang.

OAKWOOD...

A late leave, Andy? . . . Oh, yes, the weekly ironing must be done . . . the dreams of a co-ed . . . that important call from Blokewood . . . one of those numerous song fests . . . I'll meet you in the parlor after lunch . . . the eternal whirl of activity at Oakwood.

Here we live, learn, love, labor, and languish. Here we gripe, gossip, and gorge ourselves at midnight feeds. Here we publish our joys and bury our sorrows, for Oakwood is our home.

BLOKEWOOD...

Brush him off there, boy; he has a potent date . . . with such inspirations, Kent's letters ought to be good . . . catching up on the news of the world . . . one way to get an education . . . "If I ever catch the guy who did this!" . . . the nightly bull session.

Some people call it a barn, but it is home to us . . . or at least it is the place we go when we can't go any place else. We get used to the noise, the blaring radios, the "friendly" pranks of the gang next door. We even learn to study through it all—and sleep, too. Ah, the life of Blokewood!

The bells shall ring in

For three years the clouds of war have hung thick and ominous above our chime tower. It has seemed oftentimes that we could almost hear the thunder of the guns and the lightning flash of bullets. Even the notes of the bells have been saddened as word has come back to us that Manchester's sons are being killed and wounded on the battlefields of the world. Silently we bow in reverence to their memory, gratefully thanking them for their sacrifice. We bow in humbleness, realizing that nothing we can do or say can ever repay the debt we owe to them.

But if there were one message that Manchester could send to her sons it would be that the chimes, with their embodiment of brotherhood, Christian education, hope, faith, devotion, love, and peace, are still ringing. They are ringing now in the midst of war, but they are waiting impatiently for that glorious day when they can ring in the peace.

"Ring out the thousand wars of old, ring in the thousand years of peace."

MANCHESTER WAR HEROES

OUR SERVICE MEN

Dear Joe,

I am through with my AURORA work at last. I guess that you will be glad to hear that. You have been a patient and helpful listener to all my tales of woe. Now I am at the end of it; that is, I am at the end with the exception of just one thing. I have been putting it off because I just can't seem to get the right touch that is needed to do it justice. I have the idea and the inspiration, but to get them down into words that are fit to be put into the AURORA is another thing. This unfinished task is the page dedicated to "those who serve". How can I begin to express the tribute we owe to Manchester's far-flung family who are serving our country and us in these long days of war. I wish that I might be endowed, just for this moment, with the powers of a Tennyson that I might write our "In Memoriam" to these, our dear friends and classmates. But this is not my privilege and so I struggle on trying to think of some way to tell them.

Yes, I do know what I'd like to say. I'd like to tell them that we miss them. We miss their lusty shouts across the campus, their banter in the halls. We long to see them lounging in the parlor after meals, rushing noisily into the dining hall, cutting the campus in long masculine strides, sitting next to us in classes. We want to laugh again at their snoring in that dreary 7:30, want to vie with them for an A in calculus and sip an ice-cold coke with them at a table for two. We'd like to have them back again on the green Kenapocomoco field, cutting up the turf with their cleated shoes and filling the air with the atmosphere of football. We want to meet them under the clock, study with them at the lib, walk arm in arm with them along the river, play tennis with them on the sun-baked courts. Yes, those are the things I would like to tell them—but that isn't literary copy for an AURORA.

Then, someday I'd want to go on and say "thanks". Thanks for doing the job that is dangerous, oftentimes repulsive, monotonous; the job that they are doing for us. I'd want to pay the highest kind of a tribute to those who have given the supreme sacrifice; to Don, Phil, Bob, and the others. To our classmates, Al and Gene, and their colleagues in the Civilian Public Service work, I'd want to express our admiration for their courage in following what their conscience tells them is right. There would be a message also to John and Bill and others who are in prisoner-of-war camps to take courage and remember that our thoughts and prayers are with them. There would be a note to all of those who are on the seas and battlefields of the world, to those who, like you, are serving in the army camps here in the states, to our W.A.C.S. and W.A.V.E.S, to Manchester students everywhere—thanks. Now if I could only put those ideas down in some effective form.

But I can't keep wishing all night long; I must get busy. I'll write you a real newsy letter tomorrow, but for now I'll just add the letter ending that goes on so many letters from Manchester co-eds to their men in the service.

With all my love,

Jane

This section of Manchester's servicemen is as nearly correct and complete as we could make it. If there have been errors in ranks or names omitted, we ask your forgiveness.

Names with an asterisk before them indicate those who have given their lives in the services of our country.

THE EDITOR SAYS...

The 1945 AURORA in spite of difficulties, is finally in completed form and ready for you.

My thanks go to you of the staff for all your hard work and especially those trying times—re-takes, biking downtown on icy days, trying to find the right word to use, extra trips to the dark room—

To Bob Knechel for the photography, for carrying "bunglesome" equipment around over the campus, for every time you've climbed the steps to third floor, thanks. And also to the photography department for their cooperation in saving film and paper for AURORA use when there was almost none on hand, we want to express our appreciation.

Our thanks go to The Benton Review Publishing Company, Inc., The Indianapolis Engraving Company, Inc., and the S. K. Smith Company, makers of the covers. With the labor shortage, we want to recognize your cooperation in making this book possible.

Prof. Conkling, you, too, deserve thanks for your help and bits of encouragement when things looked pretty black.

We've also appreciated the understanding of all you subscribers who have waited for your book. Now the book is yours—the 1945 AURORA.

Lois Neher, Editor

A Good EYEdea! ★

FOR BETTER SIGHT!

Safeguard Precious Eyesight

Eye specialists tell us that more than 80% of all the impressions we receive from our surroundings come from sight, and yet—too often—we carelessly permit poor light to cause eyestrain that can lead to permanent eye injury.

Let's do something about it! Let's check our home lighting now and make sure our families aren't victims of eyestrain!

The following table indicates the percentages of defective vision in different age groups.

|------------------------|-------------------|
| At Birth | Negligible |
| Elementary School..... | 20% |
| College | 40% |
| Middle Age | 60% |

That's the record of America's eyesight as it stands today. There's plenty of room for improvement!
